

Company Description

AZTI offers the chance of developing your dreams through top-level research carried out by professionals who are able to generate knowledge with a significant scientific character and excellence and a clear market focus. We offer a unique professional experience in which you will participate in an excellent scientific and technological organisation, close to the markets and the needs of the food industry and maritime activities that is dynamic and a true leader and innovator in its areas of expertise. We translate our clients' needs into business opportunities, generating and providing value to our clients. Your development AZTI is a knowledge organisation, i.e., it places great value on your personal and professional development. From the moment you become a part of the organisation we will focus our attention on your professional development and growth.

Information

 Deadline: 2019-02-20
 Category: Business
 Province: Bizkaia

 Country: Basque Country
 City: Derio

Company

AZTI

Main functions, requisites & benefits

Main functions

We are looking for an expert research worker in product design, industrial processing and maintenance with experience in the food industry and similar for the area of developing food products with nutritional and/or health properties.

Requisites

Academic qualifications: Food Technology, Nutrition, Veterinary Studies, Pharmacy, Chemistry, Agricultural Engineering or other qualifications in similar fields of study. Specific requirements: At least three years' experience Experience in the design and development of new food products at the laboratory, pilot product and semi-industrial level. Experience in industrial scaling Knowledge of ingredients, formulation and industrial food processes Knowledge about food regulations Development of food products which claim to possess nutritional and/or health benefits High level of English, both written and spoken Highly valued: Experience in the food industry or similar Experience in the food industry in R&D activities for three years or more especially valued Experience in the design and execution of R&D projects with companies, and in particularly if such experience is of over three years Knowledge of the impact of food processes on nutrients and ingredients with health properties Experience in food processing technologies Experience in the development of methodologies for determining physical-chemical (related to product quality), nutritional and functional properties of foodstuffs Experience in technical-financial feasibility analysis for product design and executing action and scaling plans Experience in multi-centre and multi-disciplinary R&D projects in the food and health sector. Leadership and management skills (both technical and financial) in multi-centre projects will be highly valued, as will experience in international projects (R&D and Innovation projects, expert groups, excellence networks etc.), the management and leadership of at least one working group, from preparation stage through to proposal. Scientific papers, patents and spoken presentations at International Congresses in the field PhD Work experience at research centres abroad, particularly of over three years Specific skills related to the post on offer (knowledge sharing, attitude of being available and open to listening, maintaining fluent communication with the customer during the project life-cycle and beyond and questing for for project profitability). Driving licence Duration: one year Work place: Derio, Bizkaia

